

Spain: Optimizing your after-tax income

A legal way to cut taxes on your takings & wealth

"Tax Structuring Firm of the Year, Spain 2015 Lawyer Monthly"

You are an active employee and you might be seconded -with or without your family- to Spain to work for a company.

¿Is there any way to minimize taxes on your salary that both you and your company may profit from?

Or, perhaps, you have been working hard over the years and you are expecting to get a golden handshake in return in the short or medium term. Either in on one shot, or in several instalments. But you are not retiring for good. Not yet. Your know-how is worth too much. You are planning to keep on using it. Maybe, as a Member of the Board of Directors.

¿Will that foreseeable golden handshake be highly taxed in your home country? ¿Can the tax burden be somehow optimized?

An interesting option: Spanish special tax-regime

Spain offers you a reputable European jurisdiction. Many foreign investors are becoming Spanish tax-resident.

Provided that it is properly structured in advance, you can enjoy a very friendly tax regime, which will help to minimise your tax bill. Not to mention that your assets might be Spanish tax-free. Under certain circumstances, you might be significantly saving in Spanish taxes. The potential advantage is worth a proper structuring-advice, together with wealth and succession-planning. You will well notice when checking your after-tax bank balance.
